Effective date: 15 October 2026
Version: 360CENZAPF_1.26

Important Information

Important Notices

The information you provide in this document and through any other documentation, either directly or through your insurance broker, will be relied upon by the insurers to decide whether or not to accept your insurance as proposed and if so, on what terms.

Every question must be answered fully, truthfully and accurately. If space is insufficient for your answer, please use additional sheets, sign and date each one and attach them to this document.

If you do not understand or if you have any questions regarding any matter in this document, including these Important Notices, please contact us or your insurance broker before signing the Declaration at the end of this document.

Unless we have confirmed in writing that temporary cover has been arranged, no insurance is in force until the risk proposed has been accepted in writing by us and you have paid or agreed to pay the premium.

Duty of Disclosure

THE INSURED'S DUTY OF DISCLOSURE

Before entering into a contract of insurance with the Insurer, each prospective insured has a duty to disclose to the Insurer information that is material to the Insurer's decision whether to accept the insurance and, if so, on what terms. This includes material information about the insured, any other people and all property and risks insured under the policy. Information may be material whether or not a specific question is asked.

There is the same duty to disclose material information to the Insurer before renewal, extension, variation or reinstatement of a contract of insurance with the Insurer. The insured should also provide all material information when they make a claim or if circumstances change during the term of the contract of insurance.

It is important that each prospective insured understands all information provided in support of the application for insurance and that it is correct, as each prospective insured will be bound by the answers and by the information it has provided.

The duty of disclosure continues after the application for insurance has been completed up until the time the contract of insurance is entered into.

CONSEQUENCES OF NON-DISCLOSURE

If an insured fails to comply with its duty of disclosure, the Insurer may be entitled, without prejudice to its other rights, to reduce its liability under the contract in respect of a claim or refuse to pay the entire claim. The Insurer may also have the right to avoid the contract from its beginning. This means the contract will be treated as if it never existed and no claims will be payable.

Privacy Act

360 Construction & Engineering Limited has collected your personal information in order to evaluate your insurance requirements for the purpose of deciding whether to issue insurance cover and, if so, on what terms.

Failure to provide any personal information requested by 360 Construction & Engineering Limited may result in your application for insurance being declined.

360 Construction & Engineering Limited has also collected your personal information in order to monitor and service your ongoing general insurance requirements, conduct market research, data processing and statistical analysis.

Unless you notify 360 Construction & Engineering Limited that you disagree, the information you supply may also be used by 360 Construction & Engineering Limited to provide you with information about other facilities, products and services.

Your personal information is held by 360 Construction & Engineering Limited. In accordance with the Privacy Act 2020, individuals have a right to request access to and correction of their personal information (a fee may be payable) by contacting 360 Construction & Engineering Limited, Level 12, 66 Wyndham Street, Auckland 1010 New Zealand.
